

February 28, 2017

Grand River Foods is a federally-registered processing plant that complies with all CFIA regulations and requirements. HACCP-approved, BRC-certified, and CFIA-inspected on a daily basis, we are dedicated to the highest standards of quality, and we stand behind the products that we make for all of our customers.

As reported to CBC Marketplace before the segment aired, Subway chicken strips and oven-roasted chicken are made from 100% white meat and contain 1% or less of soy protein. We use this functional ingredient to help stabilize the texture and moisture. The erroneous findings of the Wildlife lab used by the CBC for testing of the samples are as incredulous as they are impossible. We are hoping to obtain proper and accurate quantitative test results from an unbiased accredited food science lab in the near future.

We are a proud supplier to Subway and have been for over 11 years. Subway has created delicious recipes using wholesome ingredients that keep their customers coming back time and time again – it is truly the secret of their success.

We continue to guarantee that the products we make are safe, wholesome and conform to all of our customers' high standards.

Jeff Lanteigne

Vice President, Product Development and Quality Assurance